STUDYING AT THE EHESP 2013-2014
The École des hautes études en sciences sociales is one of France’s premier institutions in the world of research and higher education. We welcome each year at our sites in Paris, Lyon, Marseille and Toulouse over one thousand new students into our Masters and doctoral programs, as well as those studying towards the school’s own EHESS Diploma. Our teaching staff work closely with research teams based around the world and more than half of our three thousand students come from outside France. This international outlook is strongly reflected in day to day life at the school. We operate in several languages as well as offer courses in French as a Foreign Language and English for the Social Sciences. We also welcome attendees from the wider public to our seminars, which number in the thousands.

As a student at the EHESS, you will soon come to recognize the intense atmosphere of innovation and collaboration across national and disciplinary boundaries on which we pride ourselves at the school. Two members of the teaching staff have particular responsibility for shaping student life: Marie-Vic Ozouf-Marignier, directrice d’études and directrice des enseignements, and Éric Wittersheim, maître de conférences and chargé de mission for student affairs. The students association and sports association, working alongside the newly formed association for alumni, also make their own unique contribution.

I look forward to meeting you on the occasion of the welcome day which will take place this year on Thursday the 15th of October.

Pierre-Cyrille Hautcœur
Président de l’EHESS
The École des hautes études en science sociales has a unique standing in the world of research and higher education in France. It trains students up to doctoral level in all disciplines of the social and human sciences (history, anthropology, sociology, economics, geography, linguistic sciences, psychology, demographical studies, cognitive science, political science, philosophy and mathematics). It is not, however, a university. The EHESS was founded in 1984 as a ‘grand établissement’ alongside the likes of the College de France, the Institut d’études politiques de Paris and the Conservatoire national des arts et métiers. The school’s unique status was recognized in 1985 by ministerial edict, which firmly set out its mission and organization: it is structured around research training for Master’s and doctoral students, as well as students of its own EHESS Diploma and candidates for the habilitation for research supervision.

The EHESS maintains close links with a number of French universities and research institutions operating within its disciplinary fields: the Centre national de la recherche scientifique, the Maison des sciences de l’Homme, the Écoles normales supérieures, the Muséum national d’histoire naturelle, the Institut national de la statistique et des études économiques, the Conservatoire national des arts et métiers, to name but a few.

ORGANISATIONAL STRUCTURE

At the head of the EHESS stands the president assisted by the president’s office. Three institutions in turn work closely with the presidency to ensure the successful functioning of the school.
The assemblée des enseignants (assembly of teaching staff) brings together the directeurs d’études and the maîtres de conferences of the EHESS. It assists in defining the academic objectives of the school as well as overseeing the recruitment, via election, of teaching and research staff. It elects the president of the school for a five year once renewable term, and its approval is required before the appointment of staff to the presidency can proceed. One member of the office is given particular responsibility in dealing with issues relating to educational practice. This member, by delegation of the president, presides over the commission de la scolarité, (Committee for Educational Practice).

The conseil d’administration (Administrative Council) is made up of 40 members. Its task is to define school regulations as well as to deliberate on the contrat d’établissement, the contract established between the school and the Ministère de l’enseignement supérieur et de la recherche, (Ministry for Higher Education and Research in France) to be renewed every four years. It approves scientific programs and votes in proposals on all matters relating to finance within the school. It also appoints select committees to deliberate on issues relating, for example, to budget and personnel. Of particular note is the commission des etudes (Committee for Student Affairs), which gives its opinion on all questions concerning student life within the school. This committee is made up of elected students as well as representatives of teaching staff and administrative personnel. It can present its opinion before the conseil d’administration on all matters relating to educational practice at the EHESS.

Student Representatives: Jérémy Guiorguieff, Florian Mathieu, Glauber Sezerino et Angelo Montoni Rios and for students enrolled in the EHESS diploma, Jean-Louis Edogué-Ntang.

The conseil scientifique (academic council) is made up of 27 members. It proposes and evaluates research programs and deliberates on all questions concerning academic practice. Other duties include management of the school’s research budget, ratifying the award of habilitation for research supervision and appointing the commission de la scolarité, which oversees teaching practice at the school. This commission deliberates in addition on all questions put before it by the president of the school, the assemblée des enseignants and the conseil d’administration and serves in an advisory capacity to these bodies. It is also a select committee of the conseil scientifique which decides on the eligibility of external tutors to supervise doctoral students at the EHESS.

Student Representative: Jalel Triki.

NB: The conseil d’administration and the conseil scientifique are made up of elected representatives of all personnel categories working at the School as well as students. Please do not hesitate to contact them with your specific queries.

PRESENTATION OF STUDY PROGRAMS

MASTERS IN SOCIAL SCIENCES

The Master’s program in social sciences at the EHESS is a Master’s by research. There are 17 subject areas and 23 routes of specialization within which a multitude of courses are available drawing on different disciplines, thematics and area studies. Courses take place principally in Paris but also in Marseille, Toulouse and Lyon. What marks our programs out from those offered at other institutions is the wider access they allow to the ensemble of courses offered at the school, permitting an individualized program of study adapted to the level, profile and objectives of each student. Students are partnered with a tutor whose responsibility it is to supervise work and to assist them in making informed decisions about the direction in which they intend to take their research. This is true also for all students enrolled in the EHESS under joint supervision. For each program, there are ‘enseignants orienteurs’: teaching staff on hand to offer students guidance in choosing their tutor and route of specialization. To find out the names and contact details of these staff within your department, please enquire with your department secretary.

The Master’s program is structured around the UE (unités d’enseignement). These are the obligatory courses addressing fundamental and methodological topics within the social sciences. Alongside the latter are a number of optional courses whose entry requirements are set out independently by each department. The unités d’enseignement de spécialisation are courses designed to direct students towards their own route of specialization and to assist them in clarifying their research objectives. They constitute the intellectual core of the EHESS, directly linked to the life of its laboratories. The second year of the Master’s program is structured around these courses, as the first year is structured around fundamental and methodological courses. Certain departments (formations de master), however, allow students to pursue their chosen route of specialization from as early as the first year of the Master’s program. Students may, in consultation with their supervisor, move towards a personalized course of studies in their first year, in preparation for specialization in earnest during their second year. Students of each department are in addition required to choose a certain number of courses in other departments of the master’s program.

Attention: Each master’s department has its own conditions for admission, evaluation and accreditation.

The contact details of research supervisors and administrative staff as well as brochures for departments are available on the website of the school at the following address: www.ehess.fr/fr/enseignement/diplomes/master/

Admission Requirements for the Master’s Program

Master’s level study is composed of two levels (M1 and M2) and is completed over two years. The completion of each level requires the accumulation of 60 credits (see below). Each level is subdivided into two semesters (S1 and S2 for M1: S3 and S4 for M2). Access to M1 is open to all students in possession of a French licence (180 credits after the baccalaureate) or an equivalent qualification corresponding to three years of study in an institution of higher education. Enrolment in M2 may take place for candidates already in possession of the M1, or a qualification corresponding to four years of study in an institution of higher education. Those in possession of the EHESS Diploma can also request enrolment directly into M2.

You must both meet the pre-conditions for courses in which you would like to enrol and receive the authorization of your tutor. For the first year of study, the choice of tutor is either the responsibility of the student or can be assumed by the relevant conseil pédagogique (Master Studies Committee), and is based on the dossier submitted by each student in application to the EHESS. In the second year of the Master’s program, you should submit your dossier to the research supervisor whose area of specialization seems to fit most closely your own research interests. The latter must be a tutor-researcher in a relevant field of study.

In all cases, enrolment is ultimately dependent on the decision of the conseil pédagogique, to whom your proposal is submitted after the approval of a tutor (M1) or director (M2) has been obtained.
Students whose applications are successful, but who are not yet in possession of the required diploma at the time of application, are admitted on the condition of the future submission of their diploma or on the production of an attestation of successful completion signed by a competent authority.

Once your application has been accepted by the relevant department, the service de scolarité (Registrar’s office) will, after checking your diplomas, inform you of the decision and will send you the documents required for proceeding with the phase of administrative enrolment. You should return these to the service de la scolarité as early as possible. It is after this phase is completed that you will be entitled to receive your student card. Enrolment may take place either by correspondence or in person during office hours. Should your application be unsuccessful, we will explain to you the reason for its rejection.

For further information, consult the heading “Inscriptions” at the following address: www.ehess.fr/fr/etudiant/inscriptions/

ECTS: European Credit Transfer System

ECTS are attributed to seminars at the discretion of the institution concerned and are awarded to students upon successful completion of a course of study and form of assessment. Under the Master’s program, courses are organized according to semester, which typically involves 24 hours of teaching, resulting in the accumulation of 6 credits.

DOCTORAL STUDIES

Doctoral Schools
All students holding a masters degree (= 300 credits after the baccalaureate) or an equivalent title requiring a minimum of 5 years of study at an establishment of higher education and the completion of a research dissertation, can enrol in the doctoral program. Students enrolled in the doctoral program belong to a doctoral school, which constitutes an independent administrative and educational body.

There are several doctoral schools at the EHESS, working in partnership with other establishments of higher education.

Enrolment in the Doctoral Program
For enrolment in the doctoral program, the applicant must obtain the approval of a prospective supervisor, the director of the doctoral school, the head of the relevant program (formation doctorale) of the doctoral school, and the president of the school. It must be followed by the registration of the intended thesis subject in the STEP database for theses under preparation. Administrative enrolment must subsequently take place each year and be consecutive. Interruption of studies for whatever reason is not permitted. If at the end of the third year you are not yet ready to defend your thesis, a fourth year of enrolment may be granted. Take note that you must be enrolled in the doctoral school during the year of your thesis defense. The service de scolarité automatically sends matriculation forms (2nd and 3rd years) to doctoral students by post after the approval of the thesis supervisor has been obtained.

Doctoral Charter
Every undertaking of doctoral research rests upon an agreement arrived at freely between doctoral student and thesis supervisor. This agreement concerns the choice of subject as well as the basic working conditions required in order to bring the research project to successful completion. Both parties therefore have rights and obligations. The thesis charter defines these reciprocal engagements in terms of the regulatory framework in force and in light of the arrangements in place for supervision at the school, about which you can find out more on the school website. The school is committed to ensuring these are also followed in the case of cotutelle studies.

The following signatories are required for enrolment: the doctoral candidate, the thesis supervisor, the director of the relevant research unit, the head of the doctoral school, the director of the doctoral school and the president of the EHESS (or by delegation the president of the commission de scolarité). The thesis charter can be downloaded in PDF format at the following address: www.ehess.fr/fileadmin/Diplome_doctorat/Charte_des_th%C3%A8ses160309.pdf

Cotutelle Studies
Doctoral study shared across two institutions requires enrolment from the first year in the doctoral program at the EHESS and in a second foreign university. The candidate shares his time equally between the two institutions and is appointed a supervisor in both institutions. Doctoral students must also sign from the first year of enrolment an agreement titled the convention de cotutelle (the form is available from the service de scolarité) in which the location of the eventual thesis defence is determined from the outset as well as the language of the final draft and defence. A summary in both oral and written form in the language of the second university will also be required. All doctoral theses defended at the EHESS must be written in French. At the end of the defence, each institution independently awards its own PhD, resulting in the award of two diplomas.

Deadline for requests for cotutelle studies: Wednesday the 9th of April 2014.
Templates for the convention de cotutelle can be obtained from the service de la scolarité: scolarite@ehess.fr 01 49 54 23 21.

Candidates in the first year of their PhD within the framework of cotutelle studies are eligible to apply for financial assistance for travel expenses.

Co-direction

Article 17 of the decree of 7 August 2006 states that: “doctoral students carry out their work under the oversight of their thesis supervisor. Supervision of the thesis may be carried out conjointly by two supervisors”. Doctoral students who opt for co-direction have their primary enrolment in a single institution, which will issue the degree of PhD on successful completion of the doctoral program. This document will nonetheless make clear the contribution of two co-supervisors to the completed PhD, both of whom will be present on the jury, though neither will preside over the jury nor write any preliminary report. Co-direction is approved on a case by case basis, and must reflect a real and practical complementariness between the fields of expertise of the co-supervisors. For each request, students must be prepared to make a thorough justification of their proposal. Please note also that co-direction can take place across doctoral programs of the EHESS.

For further information, please consult the service de la scolarité.
THE EHESS DIPLOMA

At the EHESS we award our own diploma, which is distinct from other university diplomas of an equivalent level insofar as it is not a national diploma. The EHESS Diploma is structured around the completion of a research dissertation on a precisely set out research topic, chosen in consultation with a directeur d’études or a maître de conférences. The dissertation must be written in French, constitute an original work and have the quality and presentation worthy of an academic publication. In particular, a bibliography conforming to academic convention is in all cases required.

The EHESS Diploma may be awarded for the submission of the following types of work: a critical edition of an academic or literary text; a commented translation of a contemporary or older academic work; a collection of studies grouped around a particular theme; graphic, photographic or cinematographic works; or any other type of work contributing to the advance of an academic field. In all these cases, the agreement of the commission de scolarité must be obtained prior to enrolment and the completion of an accompanying dissertation presenting the work is also required.

The EHESS Diploma requires three years of study. A fourth year of study may be granted by the president of the EHESS upon request from the student or dissertation supervisor. This request must be accompanied by supporting documentation, such as medical certificates, proof of progress made or completed sections of the dissertation. A dissertation which remains incomplete after this period may be submitted at a later date with the approval of the supervisor, although reenrolment would be required in such a case.

The EHESS Diploma may lead to direct admission into the Master 2 program. Enrolment, however, is not automatic: research supervisors and tutors responsible for the masters program decide on the suitability of the candidate pursuing further studies in his or her chosen field. The EHESS Diploma is also considered by other institutions as a means of access to the Master 2 program, although admission is in all cases at the discretion of the relevant institution. Please note that we run several competitions associated with the Diploma. You should contact your academic division for further information regarding these. There is in particular the prize for best dissertation, worth $1,500, for which all students who have completed the EHESS
Diploma that year are eligible. To be considered for this prize, candidates must first be put forward by their current research supervisors.

Admission Requirements
Prospective students should first submit their application for approval to a tutor at the EHESS. Once their application has received the approval of the latter, it will then be considered by the commission de la scolarité.

For further information concerning admission procedures, the presentation of a dissertation or other matters relating to the diploma please consult the following address: www.ehess.fr/fr/enseignement/diplomes/ehess/

HABILITATION FOR RESEARCH SUPERVISION

The habilitation for research supervision, created in application of the law of the 26th of January 1984 relating to higher education, is regulated by the decree of the 23rd of November 1988.

““The habilitation for research supervision sanctions the recognition of the high level of scientific achievement of the candidate, the original character of his scientific approach, his ability to master a research strategy within a sufficiently broad scientific or technological domain and his capacity to train young researchers”. (article 1)

It opens in particular the possibility of application for the post of professeur d’université.

Enrollment Requirements
Candidates must have obtained a doctoral degree or equivalent diploma, and have subsequently carried out a research role, or have acquired experience and produced research findings of a comparable level.

Request for enrolment may be submitted to one institution only during the course of the same university year. Candidates who have already been enrolled for the habilitation program in another establishment must notify the school.

INTERNATIONAL PROGRAMS

Master Erasmus Mundus

The Masters Erasmus Mundus TEMA involves two years of study (120 ECTS) and is an option of the multidisciplinary specialization Territories, Spaces and Societies. It offers particularly attractive conditions to students, European and non-European, wishing to pursue their studies in universities around Europe.

The Masters study program Territoires européens (civilisation, nation, région, ville): identité et développement, coordinated by the University of Éötvös Loránd, Budapest, and in partnership with the EHESS (France), the Charles University of Prague and the University of Catane, Italy, proposes a study program which aims to train future researchers or managers in the different domains of urban development and spatial planning.

Thanks to the mobility which this network of institutions renders possible, students will be able to adapt their training program to the requirements of their own professional projects.

The TEMA masters program is dispensed in French and English, and a high level in these two languages is obligatory.

For further information, contact: Marie-Claude Finas – Master TEMA and master TES www.mastertema.eu/ (3) 01 49 54 25 20.

The Humboldt University of Berlin and the EHESS Franco-German Doctoral College

The college was established in 2006 in order to encourage closer ties between French and German doctoral schools. Financed by the Franco-German University of Saarbrucken (UFA), the college unites doctoral students and teacher-researchers of the EHESS and the Humboldt-Universität within a single network. It is also in partnership with the Centre of Interdisciplinary Studies and Research on Germany (GIP CIERA), the Frankreichzentrum of the free University of Berlin, the Marc Bloch Centre and Wissenschaftszentrum Berlin für Sozialforschung. Integrated within the single multi-disciplinary doctoral school of the EHESS and within the Graduiertenkollegs of diverse institutions within Berlin, the Franco-German College aims to develop a bicultural, bi-national and bilingual hub for research, placing an emphasis on comparative approaches and locating points of intersection between disciplines.

OPEN STUDIES

In addition to those studying towards the completion of a degree, we also welcome and encourage students who wish to attend our seminars outside the framework of any program of study.
Non-Degree Students
Élèves libres (non-degree students) are those who wish to participate and be officially enrolled in our seminars. They neither undertake to complete any program of study nor, as stipulated by governmental regulations, do they have any of the advantages accorded to fully enrolled students. They nonetheless pay an enrolment fee and are entitled to receive official attestation of their participation. Whilst non-degree students are not obliged to complete any research project, they are invited to indicate the reasons for their choice of seminar to the tutor concerned.

External Students
It is possible to attend school seminars as an external student (auditeur libre) without being officially enrolled. All that is required is the permission of the teacher of the course concerned. It should be noted, however, that our seminars are not open to the public as are those of the Collège de France. While no administrative enrolment is required of those who audit our courses, they are required to first present themselves to the teacher and obtain his or her agreement before the start of the course.

Free Doctoral Research
We also accept students preparing a PhD at a foreign university and who wish to undertake a period of studies at the school (free doctoral research.) Payment of an enrolment fee is required. Free doctoral researchers receive a student card giving access to the different services provided by the EHESS (library, ITC account…).

Post-Doctoral Research
Researchers who have already obtained their PhD, and who have been invited by a tutor-researcher of the school, can also carry out post-doctoral research at a centre of the EHESS. Enrolment is without charge, and researchers receive a pass giving access to the different services provided by the EHESS.

For further information, contact the service de la scolarité: scolarite@ehess.fr 01 49 54 23 35.
At the Bureau d’accueil des étudiants handicapés (Office for the Reception of Disabled Students) we provide personalized support for students with disabilities or who suffer from a serious illness. The office serves as an interface between the student, the facilities of the EHESS and the outside world. We ensure that all parties coordinate their activities to facilitate the daily life of our students and to ensure accessibility to all the activities of the school. To this end, we offer the following services:

- Assistance in the process of enrolment (finding a tutor and completing application forms)
- Making arrangements for attendance at seminars and examinations with secretaries and teaching staff
- The provision of care assistants, sign language interpreters, specialized tutors etc.
- Technical assistance (loan of MP3 players, hearing aids, specialized software)
- Adapted study programs (course exemptions and extension of deadlines)
- Assistance with applications for accommodation, transportation and financial assistance.

For further information and requests for assistance, please contact the Mission Handicap – Bureau d’accueil des étudiants from Monday to Friday from 9am to 12am and from 1:30pm to 5pm on appointment. Manager: Marie Coutant. Bureau 717 – 190, avenue de France – 75013 Paris

FOR FOREIGN STUDENTS

Scholarships from the French Government (BGF)

The French government allocates each year a significant number of scholarships to research students. Selection is made by the cultural services of the relevant French embassy. Candidates submit proposals which contribute to research programs established according to government priorities and on the decision of joint commissions. The duration of the bursary depends on the program of study or period of training involved and follows strict deadlines. Poor academic performance may lead to the discontinuing of funding.
Scholarships from Foreign Governments (BGE)
Certain countries award scholarships to fund study abroad. You should consult the Ministry of Education of your country of origin or the relevant authority responsible for the allocation of scholarships.

NB: Students in possession of BGF or BGE scholarships are received in France by Campus France, which then delegates management of their scholarship fund to the relevant office of the CROUS. For all further information, please consult the site of Campus France, the French agency responsible for the promotion of higher education, the reception of students and international mobility: www.campusfrance.org/fr/

Scholarships Masters Île-de-France
These are intended to aid students newly enrolled at the school at M1 and M2 level and are awarded according to specific criteria. Students who are already in France at the time of application are not eligible. The EHESS selects among the applicants two dossiers for further review each year.

For further information enquire at the bureau de l’information et de la mobilité internationale étudiante (SIMI) veconuau@ehess.fr
NB: the site www.etudier-en-france.com gives valuable advice for students preparing their arrival in France (in English and in French)

Eiffel Scholarships (Masters and Doctoral Students)

Disciplines involved:

→ Science, Economy and Management,

→ Law and Political Science.

FOR MASTERS AND DOCTORAL STUDENTS

Erasmus Program
The Erasmus Program offers financial assistance to students enrolled in the M2 or doctoral program who desire to undertake a period of their program of study at an institution within the European Union. Enrolment fees at the host university are waived. Students may undertake an Erasmus exchange only once during the course of their program, except in the case of the Master “Erasmus Mundus” (www.ehess.fr/fr/enseignement/cursus-internationaux/erasmus-mundus). At Master’s level, credits gained will be measured in terms of semesters completed. After you have made your choice of university in consultation with your tutor, you should download the application form, complete it and return it signed to the service information et mobilité internationale with a photocopy of your student card valid for the current academic year. This must take place as soon as possible as the number of places is limited and enrolment in certain universities follows strict deadlines.

Please note that Master’s students must take courses at the host university in order to obtain credits contributing to their program of study at the EHESS. You are therefore required to have already decided on your list of courses and to have obtained the agreement of your tutor before submitting your application. At doctoral level, the period of travel can last between 3 and 12 months.

Financial Assistance for Study in Germany
The Centre interdisciplinaire d’études et de recherches sur l’Allemagne (GIP CIERA) proposes financial assistance for students who plan to carry out research (M2 and doctoral level for the January session and doctoral level only for the June session) or take up an internship (from M1 onwards) in the field of the social and human sciences. It aims to facilitate the mobility of students and young researchers towards Germany and other German speaking countries (Austria and Switzerland). Two sessions for the examination of applications take place each year: the first in January covers internships and research stays for projects whose start date is between January and May, the second between June and December.

NB: Please note that the CIERA will not retroactively finance any time spent in Germany.

FOR DOCTORAL STUDENTS

Student exchanges between the EHESS and the University of Chicago
Each year one doctoral student enrolled at the EHESS participates in this exchange, while a student from the University of Chicago is welcomed at the EHESS. This involves a research stay of six months for which students receive a stipend. The application process opens at the beginning of March.

This assistance is intended for doctoral students, without restriction on nationality, who are in the process of finishing their M2 or are enrolled in their first year of doctoral studies at the time of application. However, priority will be given to students in cotutelle studies and to students with modest financial resources. Applications are to be submitted for initial review to the secretary of the doctoral department of the student, although ultimate responsibility for the selection of candidates rests with the doctoral school. Each program will inform its students of deadlines for the submission of applications.

Forty prizes carrying the name ‘Prix solennels de la Chancellerie’ and worth €10,000, are awarded every year to students who have successfully defended their PhD in the course of the academic year, in either a university within the Île-de-France region or at the EHESS, the Institut national des langues et civilisations orientales, the École pratique des hautes études, the Institut d’études politiques de Paris and the Muséum national d’histoire naturelle. Candidates for the award are initially put forward by their institution. There are also prizes allowing a student to carry out research at the Maison française d’Oxford (for a stay of one year with a stipend of €15,000) and awards of an honorific character (without a financial prize attached) in law and the economic sciences. Candidates are selected initially from within each institution.

Prize for Best Thesis

Tuition at the EHESS essentially involves training for research and training through research, in which seminars serve the function of highlighting the practical and theoretical requirements for research activity. Students are initiated into the world of professional research by working directly alongside researchers, experiencing thereby the mechanics of research in progress.

Seminar series are organized either by individual researchers or are collaborative in nature. They are given either by researchers employed by the school or invited scholars, and are supplemented by the seminars organized by the research centers of the EHESS. A number of researchers based in institutions associated with the EHESS, such as the CNRS, IRD, Inserm and universities in France thus participate in the research activities and contribute to the educational offer of the school.

The seminar program 2013-2014 can be found on the website of the EHESS at the following address: www.ehess.fr/fr/enseignement/enseignements/

Seminars are here indexed according to tutor, department, route of specialization, area study, key word, domain, centre or team.

The online program is frequently updated (room changes, planning, special events, etc.) and it is advisable to treat it as first point of reference rather than the hard copy of the program.
LANGUAGE COURSES

FRENCH AS A FOREIGN LANGUAGE (FLE)

Our seminars are addressed to non-francophone students who possess at least a basic level of French and wish to improve their knowledge of the language as applied within the different domains of the social sciences.

Given the high number of foreign students at the school, priority will be given to new arrivals who have not yet benefited from these courses.

Interested students should speak to the secretary of their Masters department, who will then pass on their names to the teachers concerned.

The year is organized into two sessions of ten weeks (November/January, February/April). Students will be divided into groups according to their level and, as far as possible, their year (M1,M2,D) and program of study.

Each group (B1 to CA/C2) is made up of a maximum of 15 students who will receive two hours of tuition each week. Courses will be centered on the study of key scientific texts, supplemented by the work of students themselves.

A first meeting will take place on the welcome day of the school (15th of October 2013). Only students present on that day whose names have been passed on by department secretaries will be able to participate in the first session of courses, following individual placement tests planned for the end of October. Those who have not have been enrolled by this date should contact their department secretary at the earliest possible occasion in order to participate in the second session, for which placement tests will take place at the end of January 2014.
These courses cannot be validated, although students are required to maintain a record of good attendance. For further information, please contact Anne-Marie Havard: anne-marie.havard@ehess.fr

ENGLISH

The EHESS offers courses in English adapted for the social and human sciences. Tuition is open to all students and teachers at the school, whatever their level of English (with the exception of true beginners).

Depending on their level participants will work on documents of varying difficulty, principally articles and book chapters of multidisciplinary origin from social science works by Anglophone authors, including texts from their own research domain. They will also compose and edit texts related to their research projects (conference proposals, articles, summaries, abstracts etc).

Interested students should contact by e-mail one of the English teachers before the start of the course, in order to proceed to an evaluation and placement within the group corresponding to their level (elementary to advanced) and program of study (M1/M2 to doctoral/post-doctoral level).

For further information, contact Yasmine Mohammedi: Yasmine.Mohammedi@ehess.fr or Nicolas Kasprzyk: nicolas.kasprzyk@ehess.fr

Information and updates are also available on the website of the EHESS (“enseignements” / “séminaires de langues”).

GERMAN

The school finally offers courses in German for the social sciences, with a focus on written and oral expression. After the acquisition of a general vocabulary common to all the disciplines within the social sciences, the goal will be to accumulate vocabulary for specific domains such as history, law, anthropology or philosophy, following the research interests of students. The emphasis will be on expression (presentation of research projects, participation in academic conferences, interviews for scholarships and university posts) and written expression (drafting a CV and covering letter, summarizing... a research project, presenting research findings) although exercises designed to improve written and oral comprehension will also be provided.

Courses last for two hours and take place weekly. They are organized into two levels: beginner-intermediary and intermediary-advanced.

The school also offers a course in German for translation, a core exercise in the learning of any language. Translation essentially involves both ‘topic’ and ‘language’, and the objective of the seminar is to cover both aspects. With regards to the first aspect, students will have the opportunity to refine their knowledge of German: the course will highlight different syntactic and lexical phenomena before studying the structure and functioning of the language. Through translation into German, students will also have the opportunity to work on written expression. To turn to the second aspect, a badly understood text in a foreign language will make for a bad translation. We will therefore place a strong emphasis on the study of the different strategies for decoding texts. To this end, we will work on documents from a wide range of domains within the social and human sciences: literature, linguistic sciences, history, history of art, politics, anthropology and philosophy.

The research teams and research centres of the EHESS, located in Paris, Lyon, Marseille and Toulouse, possess either exclusively or in partnership with other institutions rich documentary resources stored in libraries or documentary resource centres, open to both students and researchers. They are placed under the supervision of qualified personnel whose responsibility it is to ensure consistency between the documentary resources of the school and its research activities. Attentive to technological advances and their impact on the communication of scientific and technical information, they hold regular sessions of the discussion group GDBE (Groupe des documentalistes et bibliothécaires de l’EHESS) and participate in the implementation of the policy of open access to electronic resources developed by the direction des systèmes d’information (ICT department) and the research centres of the EHESS. In addition, the archival services of the EHESS are responsible for the collection and management of documents relating to the institutional and academic history of the school.

Under the heading ‘Ressources documentaires’ (http://www.ehess.fr/fr/ressources-documentaires/) you will find a presentation of the documentary resources of the institution and how to access them whether via libraries, catalogues, archives, open access archives, electronic resources or audio-visual materials. You will also find guides and study aids to assist you in your research.

At Lyon, the documentary resource centre CIHAM Histoire, archéologie, littératures des mondes chrétiens et musulmans médiévaux (http://ciham.ish-lyon.cnrs.fr), gives access to around 7,000 works.

At Marseille, the Archival Centre for the Social Sciences (www.vcharite.univ-mrs.fr/cdss) gives students direct access to over 14,000 works and a significant collection of journals. The Centre de

At Toulouse the holdings of the laboratory TRACES, Travaux et recherches archéologiques sur les cultures, les espaces et les sociétés (http://traces.univ-tlse2.fr/), holds around 19,000 documents. In addition, the library of the LISST-Centre for Social Anthropology possesses around 6,000 works in anthropology and ethnology.

Students of the EHESS also have access to university libraries.

The Éditions de l’EHESS is the publishing wing of the school, and has the role of disseminating to the wider academic community and public innovative and demanding research within the social sciences. Remaining true to the experimental tradition of the EHESS, it seeks to participate in the opening and exploration of new research fields.

The Éditions de l’EHESS welcomes research findings across the spectrum of the social sciences, and accepts a broad range of works: whether preliminary findings or matured research, research conducted within or originating from outside the EHESS, of French or international origin. It stipulates only that they be intellectually in keeping with its guiding principles. Its catalogue increases by approximately thirty items a year and includes works which over the last half a century have fundamentally altered the research landscape of the social sciences.

Reflections on the Intellectual Project of the Social Sciences

It orders its publications according to the following categories:

→ Fundamental Research (the collection ‘En temps & lieux’);
→ The Epistemology of the Social Sciences (two collections ‘Enquête’ and ‘Raisons pratiques’);
→ Intervention in public debates (‘Cas de figure’);
→ The History and Theory of Art, represented by the collection ‘L’histoire et représentations’ founded by Louis Marin;
→ A specialized collection on the Translation of Major Texts ‘EHESS-Translations’;
The Voice of the social sciences with the collection ‘Audiographie’;
The collection ‘Hautes Études’, which publishes the Lectures of Michel Foucault;
The collection ‘Contextes’, which crosses Philosophical Interrogations and social sciences;
The collection ‘Mètis. Anthropologie des mondes grecs’;
‘Grief’, in partnership with Dalloz, will offer from 2014 a forum for reflection and debate within the domain of legal studies.

Les Éditions de l’EHESS is also responsible for the publication of seven journals with an international readership: les Annales, Archives de sciences sociales des religions, Cahiers d’études africaines, Cahiers du monde russe, Études rurales, Histoire & Mesure, L’Homme. They can be consulted on line, notably at revues.org and on cairn.info. Both are accessible from the ENT platform of the EHESS (see below the heading: ‘ENT’). Previous editions can also be accessed without restriction on persee.fr.

Within such a rich catalogue three recent publications will be of particular interest to students, accompanying them along their Intellectual development at the EHESS:

→Faire des sciences sociales. Critiquer, comparer, généraliser. This trilogy reflects the continuing vitality of research carried out at the EHESS.

→Devenir chercheur. Écrire une thèse en sciences sociales. The goal of this anti-textbook is to mediate the experience of writing a thesis from the perspective of the individual with the institutional context of research, by definition from a collective perspective, in which doctoral students often feel left out.

→Le tapuscrit. This work addresses questions relating to the material preparation of texts in the human sciences. How are we to ensure the most effective presentation of a manuscript and facilitate collaboration between authors and publishers? This work has served as a key reference for researchers and students for a number of years.
A Commitment to Internationalisation

→ Initiating of the seminar “Édition-traduction” at the start of the academic year 2013-2014;
→ A call for doctoral students and researchers to participate in the monitoring committee for translations established by the Éditions de l’EHESS.
→ Sciences sociales d’ailleurs identifies key works which have not yet been translated into French. This collection aims to communicate to a wider audience the contribution of these works to the social sciences around the world;
→ The “Manifeste pour une édition en sciences humaines réellement européenne”, launched by the Éditions de l’EHESS and signed by over fifty European publishers.

Active in Public and Inter-Professional Debate
Beyond their role as publisher, the Éditions organizes inter-professional meetings and debates open to the public. Please note the following conference cycles:
→ On the contemporary world: the cycle Rendez-vous de crise (with the Cercles de formation de l’EHESS), the cycle Les Agendas du politique (with the labex Tepsis), the cycle Lire la société (with the BPI of the centre Pompidou);
→ On the issues and challenges involved in the circulation of social scientific knowledge: the cycle Éditer les sciences sociales aujourd’hui, the cycle À l’écoute des sciences sociales, with the EHESS Marseille and the Bibliothèque départementale de Marseille;
→ Crossing different perspectives: the cycle Un film-un livre.
VIDÉO LIBRARY

The ever growing video library of the EHESS has at present a catalogue of over 5,000 recordings, for the most part documentary films. It gives students and researchers access to films (around 1,400 documents), recordings of seminars and conferences, works on cinema, as well as to a diverse array of printed documents such as works and articles on cinema, with a particular emphasis on animated film. The films contained in the collection are principally documentaries on the social sciences with a predominance of ethnographical and anthropological films, although there are also sociological, historical and biographical films. To complete the catalogue are some works of fiction which address themes of interest to the social sciences. Principally represented are Africa and Europe, and to a lesser extent Asia, Latin America, North America and Oceania. The Société Française d’Anthropologie Visuelle (SFAV) has been hosted by the EHESS since 2012. The collections of the EHESS and SFAV as well their bibliographical database may be consulted on a reference only basis. Audiovisual documents are principally in VHS or DVD format.

DIGITAL VIDEO LIBRARY

The EHESS is committed to preserving the scientific activities of the school for future generations. The direction de l’audiovisuel, (audiovisual department) created in 2006, is tasked with the recording and broadcasting of major public events of the school (conferences, day workshops, debates etc.) This will serve to create a ‘living’ memory’ to supplement and dynamize other means of recording (publication and archiving in printed format), and to attract a new public, both academic and non academic, thereby widening and prolonging the impact of the event. Finally, this tangible trace will constitute over the long term a key tool for mapping the history of our institution and its activities.

Since November 2011 the audio-visual productions of the EHESS have been stored in the Canal U, the digital video library of higher education, and can be freely accessed without charge. This interactive tool enables users to create their own ‘channels’ and to broadcast their analyses and commentaries. The digital video library of the EHESS collects together events organized by the research centres and services of the school. It currently stocks 150 audiovisual programs representing a diversity of disciplines, the majority of which can be downloaded as podcasts.

OPEN ACCESS ARCHIVES AND HAL

HAL (Hyper article en ligne) was created by the CNRS in 2001 as an initiative within the movement for open access to research. It is a website which allows researchers to upload their own work with a view to optimizing its visibility, accessibility and ease of dissemination. HAL is intended as an open access archive for the entire French scientific community. Access to texts or documents is unrestricted and without charge. It constitutes an immense digital reservoir accessible via Isidore, Google Scholar and other specialized research engines.

The following three collections of HAL are of particular importance for the students of the EHESS:

- HAL-SHS (human and social sciences);
- MédiHAL (open archive of photographs and scientific images);
- TEL (thèses en ligne): (database of student doctoral theses).

The archives HAL-EHESS and TEL-EHESS, established in 2011, give access to the work of researchers and doctoral students affiliated to the EHESS.

Certain centers of the EHESS also post collections, such as the Institut Jean-Nicod (IJN), l’Institut interdisciplinaire d’anthropologie du contemporain (IIAC), and the Centre international de recherche sur l’environnement et le développement (CIRED), the Centre Alexandre-Koyré / Centre de recherche en histoire des sciences et des techniques. A list of archives of all the centres of the EHESS is available under the heading: documentation de l’EHESS.

Students who wish to have their thesis archived in the TEL will find information on what steps to take in the Lettre de l’EHESS n° 52 (http://lettre.ehess.fr/3945).
ARCHIVES

The service des archives is responsible for the collection and management of the institutional and scientific archives of the EHESS. In its reading room, situated at 96 Bvd Raspail and hosting principally researchers and students, several types of document can be consulted:

- The collection of directories, brochures, leaflets and posters of the EHESS, including reports of seminars and conferences and the catalogues of research centers.
- Administrative holdings, research center archives and more than sixty personal archives of researchers at the school.

Provisionally stored in different sites, the ensemble of these collections (totaling three linear kilometers) constitutes a particularly rich source for the scientific and institutional history of research within the social and human sciences.

There may be a waiting period before access to certain documents is granted, in conformity with legal requirements governing the accessibility of public archives. Access is in general without restriction, with the exception of certain documents which entail special delays, and authorization is required in the case of researchers’ personal archives (from the copyright holder in question). In addition, a certain number of archival holdings of the EHESS will be moved to the new site of the national archives at Pierrefitte-sur-Seine. The catalogues for these documentary resources can be consulted at the archival services, and will soon be available on line.

To find out more: www.ehess.fr/archives/

The reading room of the archives is open to the public, on appointment, from Monday to Friday, from 9h30 to 17h30 96, bd Raspail – 75006 Paris

NOUVEAU CHAPITRE DE LA THÈSE (NCT)

This program is designed to help students nearing the completion of their doctoral studies to see their thesis not merely as an academic undertaking but more generally as a personal and professional experience. Students are encouraged to take a step back from their research activities and to see the challenges faced during their completion in terms of the challenges involved in the conception and realization of any project, whether professional or academic. They are in turn invited to reflect on the skills developed during this process. Interested students should download the application form at the site of the Bernard Gregory Association (ABG) and contact the local coordinator of enrollment at the EHESS.

Enquire at the secretary’s office of the École doctorale ecole.doc@ehess.fr or consult the site of the Association Bernard Gregory: www.intelligence.fr

CIFRE AGREEMENTS

This arrangement, co-financed by the ANRT (Association nationale de recherche technique) enables young doctoral students (≈ 26 years) to finance completion of their thesis while working part-time within a professional environment linked to their research. The company concerned signs the equivalent of either a permanent contract or a fixed term three year contract. It is the responsibility of the student to initiate contact with a suitable company, although the ANRT organizes forums each year and circulates information on its site of offers from companies (http://www.anrt.asso.fr/index.jsp).

STUDENT LIFE

ESPACE ÉTUDIANT

Please take note of our student centre at 96 Bvd Raspail (in the basement of the building to the right in entering the courtyard). This centre is open to all students of the EHESS from Monday to Friday from 9h to 21h and Saturday from 9h to 13h during term time. This building also contains a meeting room whose usage is reserved for the students’ association, the sports association and the student unions of the EHESS.

STUDENTS ASSOCIATION

The association des étudiants de l’EHESS, the AEHESS, was founded in 2009 and is the focal point for student social life at the EHESS. It organizes a range of events and activities for both Masters and doctoral students, enabling them to come together around leisure and intellectual exchange. These include:

- Partnerships with theatres and concert halls, exhibitions of student photographs, a theatre club and an international café
- An ‘apéritif’ every Thursday evening, nights out every month at bars around Paris
- It is also an important place for students to find out about what professional opportunities are available and the possibilities which exist for professionalizing their research. It is responsible in addition for the publication of an electronic journal.

Do not hesitate to contact us if you wish to obtain further information on life as a student at the school or on the association itself.

Contact: ae@ehess.fr
SPORTS ASSOCIATION

Created in 2009, the sport’s association of the EHESS caters for a diverse range of users. It is run by students on a voluntary basis and depends on your active participation.

For the year 2013-14, from the month of November, the association will offer a wide array of sporting activities and facilities (swimming pool, Swedish gym, yoga, hill walking, visit to the museum of sport, half-marathon of Paris, 10k run from Vincennes and so on). Other activities may also be organized according to student interest. We would very much welcome any student who wishes to volunteer their help. The membership fee for the year is five euro.

STUDENT UNIONS

SUD Étudiant, active at the EHESS since 1999, brings together Masters and doctoral students as well as those studying towards the EHESS Diploma. Its vocation is to defend the rights of the ensemble of students at the EHESS, whether via the institutional bodies of the school where it is represented (Conseil d’administration, Conseil scientifique, École doctorale) or at a local and national level. The improvement of study conditions (access to libraries, integration into laboratories) or living conditions (facilities for students, social action, struggle against discrimination) are some of its priorities, as are its defense of foreign students, working students and students in conflict with their tutor. The SUD Étudiant EHESS works to enhance the democratic character of life at the school by ensuring that all categories of student have a voice within it. To follow it’s activities: http://sud-ehess.over-blog.com/. To contact the union and request to be included in its mailing list ehess@sud-etudiant.org.

Consultation hours will be available on its blog and the website of the EHESS at the start of the academic year.
THE ASSOCIATION FOR ALUMNI AND FRIENDS OF THE EHESS

The EHESS has recently formed an association of alumni (www.alumni.ehess.fr/fr/accueil/) whose objectives are the following: to maintain and consolidate links between members of the EHESS community, in particular between those who have graduated and will graduate from the school; to facilitate the transition of former students into professional life; to advise and support its members across the evolution of their careers; to raise the profile of the school, promote its image and diplomas and help achieve the greatest possible diffusion of the social sciences in wider society. Another of its objectives is to create links between former students who have returned to their country of origin, thereby increasing the international outreach of the school. Finally, it also proposes cultural events, visits and conferences with the participation of researchers of the EHESS.

The association is still in the process of establishing itself, and depends on the investment of its members to consolidate the structures which will put it on a sure footing for the years to come. Those who have recently graduated from the school have the right to membership free of charge for two years. For others, the minimum annual contribution is set at 15 euros. Do not hesitate to contact us with your questions and suggestions all of which will help us to enhance the life of the association. We would be more than happy to count you among our members.
ICT RESOURCES

The direction des systèmes d’information (the DSI or ICT Department) puts a wide array of digital tools at the disposal of tutors-researchers, students and administrative staff. CENTRAL MAILING LIST OF STUDENTS

There exists a central mailing list (etudiants@ehess.fr) which includes all fully enrolled students (cf. ‘comptes informatiques’). We advise you to regularly consult your message box (prénom.nom@ehess.fr). It gives indispensable information concerning study and administration at the school, alerting students to calls for the submission of applications for scholarships and bursaries. Applications have precise deadlines attached and regular consultation of your message box is necessary to give yourself advanced warning. You should also regularly consult your message box in order to keep yourself informed generally on what is happening at the school.
Foreign Students in receipt of a scholarship and requiring university accommodation should apply several months in advance to the service d’accueil des invités étrangers (Office for the Reception of Foreign Students and Teachers) of the EHESS.

Halls of Residence
The CROUS is composed of a network of regional centres which allocate students furnished bedrooms in university halls of residence based on social criteria. There are 36 such residences in Paris, and certain branches also possess more spacious accommodation. A typical student bedroom costs around 180€ per month, after deduction of APL provided by the Caisse d’allocation familiale (see below). You can apply for accommodation from the CROUS by filling in the form ‘Dossier Social Étudiant’ between the 15th of January and the 30th of April for the next university year.

Please note that the dossier social étudiant covers applications for bursaries and accommodation.

For further information, contact the service logement from 9 h to 12 h (except Friday):
- ground floor of the Sarrailh building – 39, av. Georges Bernanos – 75005 Paris (RER B Port-Royal)
- phone: 01 40 51 36 12
- email: logement@crous-paris.fr

You may also consult:
www.crous-paris.fr,
www.crous-aix-marseille.fr,
www.crous-toulouse.fr

The website of the CROUS also displays advertisements for accommodation offered by private landlords. The CROUS of Paris has finally a small number of bedrooms and studios specially adapted for disabled students. Interested students should first complete their ‘Dossier Social Étudiant’ on line on the website of the CROUS of their current place of study and then contact (preferably between January and April):

Catherine Séradin of the CROUS, Paris, responsible for receiving students and coordinating transport: ☏ 01 44 27 35 05  Catherine.Seradin@crous-paris.fr.
All applications will be assessed by a select committee.

Financial Assistance for Accommodation

Other Accommodation

There exist a certain number of student residences in Paris which are not part of the CROUS but which are still eligible for forms of financial assistance such as the APL (see below).

For further information, enquire directly at the residence or consult:

www.crous-paris.fr/article.asp?idcat=AADH

Financial Assistance for Accommodation

The Caisse d’allocations familiales (CAF) gives different forms of financial assistance for accommodation: Allocation logement à caractère social (ALS), Aide personnalisée au logement (APL) and the Allocation logement à caractère familial (ALF). Tenants, cotenants or sub-tentants of a furnished or non-furnished lodging, privately rented bedroom, hotel, foyer, or halls of residence are all eligible to apply as are foreign students. The level of financial assistance allocated is determined via an evaluation of financial resources, family income, type of accommodation, locality and the cost of rent.

To get an idea of how much you might be entitled to, consult their site: www.caf.fr (rubrique “étudiant”).

There are several types of financial assistance for accommodation:

- ALS, Allocation logement à caractère social: applies to all types of rented accommodation. It is the form of financial assistance most often given to students. Note that all students within CROUS Halls of Residences have the right to ALS.
- APL, Aide personnalisée au logement: to be eligible for APL (a more substantial award than ALS) you must be a tenant of a residence whose landlord has signed a convention with the State, true of certain student residences belonging to the CROUS. This assistance is given directly to the landlord who deducts it from your rent. If you are entitled to APL, you cannot also receive ALS. Students should enquire directly with their accommodation supervisor upon arrival.
APL applications are generally initiated by either the landlord or manager of the accommodation. It is the policy of the CAF, however, to see the tenant as holding ultimate responsibility for the completion of their dossier.

- L’ALF, Allocation logement à caractère familial: Assistance for students with children.

Note that if you are under 25 years of age you are entitled to APL and ALS, but your parents will no longer receive any benefits for you. To apply for this assistance, complete your application on line at http://www.caf.fr (under « Étudiants »). You are required to print your application form and send it by post. HEALTH

Social Security and Health Insurance
For all students between the ages of 20 and 28 affiliation to the social security scheme for students is obligatory, except in those cases in which students already make their own health insurance contributions as a salaried worker, or are included as part of a joint scheme in the name of a non-student contributor, or at least one parent obtains a salary from a company subscribing to a joint social security package. If you do not fall into one of the latter categories and are under 28, then before you can complete enrolment you must adhere to the ‘mutuelle étudiante’ by signing up with one of the many organizations authorized to dispense this regime. It is these organizations which reimburse health costs and medical fees. There are several across the country: one national, the LMDE centre 601 (www.lmde.fr), the rest regional, belonging to the national network of centres 617 (you can find a list of regional mutuelles schemes at www.usem.fr). Please also consult the following site: www.iledefrance.fr

Preventive Medicine
The interuniversity service for preventive medicine and the promotion of health (SIUMPPS) is composed of multidisciplinary teams tasked with the care of students of higher education. It is active in all fields of prevention and carries out campaigns promoting health and awareness for and with the participation of students.

The SIUMPPS has a permanent help desk which students can contact free of charge to receive personalized advice, vaccination updates, a medical certificate, and so on. It also offers services such as:
- Eye tests,
- Dental check ups,
- Hearing tests,
- Information on contraception,
→ Consultation and assistance for psychological problems and disorders,

The École des Hautes Études en Sciences Sociales (EHESS) is a public graduate research institution in the social sciences. Its aim is primarily research and graduate training. Teaching is organized around seminars in which each professor presents his/her own work-in-progress. Research and teaching activities are carried out in the following disciplines: history, sociology, anthropology, economics, demographics, geography, law, archaeology, psychology, linguistics, cognitive sciences, philosophy and mathematics. Interdisciplinary confrontation and dialogue between these fields is a trademark of the EHESS.

Since its creation, the EHESS has developed a commitment to international students. They constitute about half of the student body, enrich the life of the institution, and contribute to its academic growth. The EHESS welcomes students at the Master’s and Ph.D. level. A Master’s degree is required to enter the Doctoral Program (École doctorale). For international students with little or no prior degree or academic experience, EHESS also awards its own diploma (Diplôme de l’EHESS), which may then open access to the Doctoral Program. The list of sections in the Doctoral Program and the list of the fields (mentions) in the Master’s program may be consulted online: www.ehess.fr/fr/etudiant/formations/

An English translation of this booklet is available online on the EHESS website.
