CALL FOR PROJECTS

RESEARCH CREATION IN SOCIAL SCIENCES (CRESS)

The School of Advanced Studies in Social Sciences (EHESS) offers one-month residency grants at the Maison des Chercheurs located at Campus Condorcet for artists (candidates should originally have permanent residence outside the French territory) to support their engagement in a collaboration with researchers based at EHESS. The residencies may be divided into two stays.

The work produced by means of this collaboration is intended to be multidisciplinary, and it should emphasize the articulation of social sciences with the issues of innovative and creative narratives.

The laureates are thus offered the opportunity to involve themselves in Campus Condorcet project, an intellectual and artistic hub located only fifteen minutes by metro from Paris city centre, and partake in the new dynamic of the urban and cultural development of the Paris Metropolis.

CONTEXT

The School of Advanced Studies in Social Sciences (EHESS) gathers together researchers and students from across the world with the aim to create a dialogue between all social sciences for an in-depth understanding of societies, in all their complexity. Since its creation as an autonomous institution in 1975, history, sociology, anthropology, economics, philosophy, geography, literary and artistic studies, psychology, and cognitive sciences have been thriving at EHESS thanks to the establishment of a permanent interdisciplinary dialogue.

In the wake of its settlement at Aubervilliers, EHESS has now the opportunity to fulfill its goal of establishing itself as a great research and teaching institution in France and internationally. Since its students and research centres have invested this territory, a new era in EHESS history has initiated. Campus Condorcet hosts 11 research institutions and 80 research units in the humanities and social sciences. Nearly 5,000 doctoral students and 4,200 researchers, many of whom hailing from across the world, work on the campus, making it one of the world’s leading research hubs in the humanities and social sciences.

Within EHESS, the Image and Sound Department (DIS) is a research facility that promotes a reflexive and creative approach to images and sounds in order to develop innovative narratives in the social sciences. It provided training for students and researchers alike, supports their creations and invites international artists for screening cycles of their works with debates and master classes.

The CRESS programme, coordinated by the DIS, aims to establish the framework where collaboration between social science researchers and artists can be fostered, thus turning EHESS and Campus Condorcet into an international meeting point for research-creation. The programme includes three components: production – consisting of one-month residencies for researcher-artist partners with a view to a joint deliverable; training for students and researchers; and staging of events such as roundtables, exhibitions, screenings, restitutions, etc.
Fully audio-visual equipped spaces will be provided in order to offer the best of working conditions throughout the residencies, at Campus Condorcet (in the facilities of Hôtel à Projets, Grand Equipement Documentaire (GED), Espace associatif et culturel, the EHESS building), as well as into a set of creative spaces in Aubervilliers and in Seine Saint-Denis more widely (Les laboratoires d’Aubervilliers, Le studio, le 6B, etc.).

In order to anchor this dialogue between the arts and social sciences in the cultural areas explored at EHESS and the practice of fieldwork, the programme also includes the possibility of one-month (maximum) missions, that may be divided into two periods, allowing the partners to immerse themselves in a field related to their creative project. This collaborative field experience will be scheduled before the residency and may lead to the constitution of a corpus (whether textual, photographic, sonic, filmic, graphic, etc.) to be mobilized in view of elaborating the final outcome during the residency.

TERMS AND CONDITIONS OF ELIGIBILITY

- Researchers are to belong to one of the EHESS research centres: full member researchers, postdoctoral fellows (contractors with EHESS at the time of application as well as during the residency), doctoral students (whether contractors or not).

- Artists and researchers are to collaborate in order to create an original work or a new project. To be eligible, artists should originally have permanent residence outside the French territory.

- Particular attention will be paid to projects that are integrated into research programmes including EHESS (EIT, ANR, ERC, LABEX, etc.).

- Projects that consolidate links with EHESS partners or develop links with new cultural institutions based in the Ile-de-France region for production and/or exhibition will be valued.

- Collaborations are to result in exhibitions, in a form to be determined, at the end of residencies.

RESIDENCY AND FIELDWORK MISSION

The residency grants will include:

- For artists: transportation fees, accommodation at the Maison des Chercheurs of Campus Condorcet and a flat-rate mobility allowance equivalent to one month’s stay as part of the Visiting Professorship programme (between 3,700 and 4,000 euros depending on the country of origin for a period of 28 days);

If the selected projects involve fieldwork, CRESS will cover the costs of the artists’ and researchers’ fieldworks for a period up to a month.

- For researchers: coverage of mission expenses for a maximum of a one-month fieldwork, as well as compensation of the expenses related to accommodation in case researchers reside outside the Île-de-France region (transportation if necessary, per diem).

A budget intended to cover the practical needs generated by the project (space rentals, material, equipment, etc.) may be allocated. An estimate of these additional costs should be provided.

2. the project application, including a summary of the project and its detailed description (2,000 words max.);
3. a budget estimate for the project implementation (production costs, events, etc.);
4. any additional information on the project (themes, approaches, disciplines, etc.) as well as on the cultural institutions proposed for the production/exhibition of the project.

A review committee set up by the Image and Sound Department (DIS) will be in charge of selecting the projects. The result of the selection process will be announced in early April 2022.

SCHEDULE

The residencies, for a total duration of four weeks, and fieldwork missions shall take place between May 2022 and December 2022 (except July and August). The residency may be divided in two stays (ie. two-week periods twice).
