The University of Hong Kong (HKU) is a comprehensive research-intensive institution comprising ten faculties. HKU's high-calibre staff and students—recruited from around the region and the world—engage in innovative research with local, regional and global significance across the University's faculties and research centres and institutes. HKU consistently ranks high among the world’s top universities.

The Faculty of Social Sciences seeks to contribute to the advancement of society and the development of leaders through a global presence, regional significance and engagement with the rest of China. The Faculty strives to attract and nurture outstanding scholars in the social sciences from around the world through excellence and innovation in teaching and learning, research and knowledge exchange. The Faculty aims to produce citizens with a global perspective who are critical thinkers, socially aware, ready to embrace diversity, and seek to make an impact on society. The Faculty comprises five departments: Geography, Politics and Public Administration, Psychology, Social Work and Social Administration, Sociology. http://www.soesc.hku.hk

The Faculty of Arts is internationally regarded for its cutting edge research across the range of its subject areas. Its reputation is built on innovation and collaboration, bringing together researchers spanning several disciplines to pioneer new research trends in the Arts and Humanities. There is a strong vision for developing successful interdisciplinary research, and a commitment to ensuring that our research effectively informs our own teaching as well as a wider process of knowledge exchange in close partnership with a range of stakeholders. Our research strives to understand the changing nature of local and global values, processes and challenges in their social cultural, economic and historical contexts. It is one of the Faculty’s stated missions to serve as an international gateway and forum for humanistic scholarship between China and the rest of the world. The Faculty comprises four schools: Chinese, English, Humanities (including the department of History) and Modern Languages and Cultures. http://www.arts.hku.hk
