

The visiting professors programme

The Visiting professors programme is one of the flagship programmes of EHESS, contributing to its international reputation. Its objective is threefold:

- To contribute to the diversity of the School's teaching offer. Each guest leads at least four seminars during his/her stay and takes part in the scientific life of the School and the host laboratory
- To contribute to the development of the School's international networks
- To offer EHESS students a scientific dialogue with professors and researchers from all over the world

There are two types of invitations:

- Classic one-month invitations
- Invitations over three years (one month each year), to establish ongoing collaborations with an international colleague

Call for applications 2021-2022

The call for applications for the 2021-2022 Visiting Professors Programme is currently underway.

The deadline for submission of applications is 23 April 2021 at noon.

Applications are to be submitted online. No paper application will be accepted.

No applications will be accepted after the deadline.

Conditions of the call for applications

Each teacher-researcher at EHESS, who is a statutory member in activity during the academic year of the invitation, may propose to host an international professor as a host and participate with another colleague in another invitation.

Each statutory member of an EHESS laboratory may propose the hosting of an international professor, provided that an active EHESS teacher-researcher is a co-inviter.

An EHESS teacher-researcher or a statutory member of an active EHESS laboratory, participating in the proposal of an EIT project (Triennial International Team), will not be able to submit an application under the visiting professors programme for the duration of their EIT project.

Eligible colleagues must have a status in their country equivalent to that of a lecturer, professor or research director.

International professors working in one of the international institutions with which EHESS has an exchange agreement are preferred.

Therefore, if you are an eligible international professor or lecturer and you wish to participate in this programme, we invite you to contact an EHESS teacher-researcher who could host you as a visiting professor. You can consult the list of EHESS teacher-researchers on the following link:

Hosting conditions:

In an ongoing effort to improve the conditions of hosting visiting professors, EHESS has implemented the payment of per diem to financially compensate the visiting professor for the time dedicated to the preparation of his or her lectures, but also to compensate for costs related to transportation, accommodation and catering.

The visiting professor's stay is for a period of at least 28 consecutive days. Each visiting professor will give a minimum of four lectures, at least three of which will be at EHESS. Visiting professors will give at least half of their lectures in seminars other than that of their host.

Furthermore, the stay of the visiting colleagues must coincide with the teaching periods of the institution, excluding in particular the periods of university holidays, in order to encourage exchanges with students.
